<Education Background />

I'm a final year Electronic Engineering Student, have about one year of web development field and have been coding some laravel experience on real world projects with team and now I am ready to build modern Web Pages and Web App for clients.

<Language and Skills />

HTML, CSS, JavaScript, Php, Laravel, React, Figma.

<Experience />

Actually,I am a final year Electronics Engineering student but after two years of self-study in web development through resources like freecodecamp, I am now confident in my abilities to work on projects as a freelancer. I have developed a deep understanding of Laravel, a popular PHP framework for building back-end web applications, and have gained significant experience building complex and scalable applications using it. Additionally, my studies in React have given me a strong foundation in building dynamic user interfaces. With this knowledge and experience, I am confident in my ability to take on new and exciting projects as a freelancer and deliver high-quality work to my clients.
